LEAVES COMPARED WITH FLOWERS

A tree's leaves may be ever so good,
So may its bar, so may its wood;
But unless you put the right thing to its root
It never will show much flower or fruit.

But I may be one who does not care
Ever to have tree bloom or bear.
Leaves for smooth and bark for rough,
Leaves and bark may be tree enough.

Some giant trees have bloom so small
They might as well have none at all.
Late in life I have come on fern.
Now lichens are due to have their turn.

I bade men tell me which in brief,
Which is fairer, flower or leaf.
They did not have the wit to say,
Leaves by night and flowers by day.

Leaves and bar, leaves and bark,
To lean against and hear in the dark.
Petals I may have once pursued.
Leaves are all my darker mood.

POEM BY ROBERT FROST

Robert Skrob's Poetic Love Story is a captivating tale of love, loss, and redemption. Experience the power of words as they paint a vivid picture of longing, heartbreak, and the resilience of the human spirit.

Through a series of interconnected poems, Skrob explores the complexities of love and its ability to both uplift and devastate. His words resonate with a raw honesty that will leave you breathless and longing for more.

As you journey through this poetic landscape, you'll encounter characters whose hearts are filled with both joy and sorrow. You'll witness the transformative power of love as it blossoms, wilts, and ultimately heals. And you'll be reminded of the enduring strength of the human spirit, even in the face of adversity.

Robert Skrob's Poetic Love Story is a must-read for anyone who has ever loved and lost. It's a story that will stay with you long after you've finished reading it, and it's a story that will ultimately give you hope.
