This tactic was popularised by Manchester City manager Pep Guardiola, who used it to great effect with Sergio Aguero. Aguero is a natural goalscorer, but he is also a very good passer and dribbler. 2. The Use of Wing-Backs

Another notable tactical trend of the 2024 Premier League season was the use of wing-backs. Wing-backs are defenders who play high up the pitch and are responsible for providing width and attacking support.

This tactic was popularised by Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp, who used it to great effect with Andy Robertson and Trent Alexander-Arnold. Robertson and Alexander-Arnold are both excellent attacking players, and they were able to create a number of chances for their teammates from wide areas.

Other teams that used the wing-back tactic during the 2024 season included Manchester City, Chelsea, and Tottenham Hotspur. All three teams had success with this tactic, as it allowed them to create more width and attacking options.

3. The Importance of Pressing

Pressing is a defensive tactic that involves putting pressure on the opposition when they are in possession of the ball. This can force the opposition to make mistakes and give up possession.

Pressing was a key factor in the success of Manchester City, Liverpool, and Chelsea during the 2024 Premier League season. All three teams were able to press their opponents high up the pitch and force them to make mistakes.

Other teams that used pressing during the 2024 season included Arsenal, Tottenham Hotspur, and Manchester United. All three teams had success with this tactic, as it allowed them to win back possession more quickly and create more chances.
