In the ever-evolving landscape of modern warfare, the ability to deliver precise and effective fire support is paramount. For the United States Army, Training Circular TC 09 Fire Support and Field Artillery Certification and Training (TC 09) stands as the definitive guide to developing and maintaining a highly proficient fire support and field artillery force.

A Comprehensive Guide to Firepower Excellence

TC 09 is a comprehensive document that provides detailed guidance and procedures for conducting fire support and field artillery training and certification within the US Army. It offers a holistic approach to training, encompassing every aspect from individual soldier proficiency to collective unit operations.

The circular covers a wide range of topics, including:

- Basic fire support principles
- Fire support planning and coordination
- Field artillery systems and capabilities
- Fire direction and control
- Target acquisition and engagement
- Fire support certification and training standards

Individual and Collective Proficiency

TC 09 recognizes that effective fire support requires both individual and collective proficiency. The circular outlines a comprehensive training program for individual soldiers, focusing on developing core skills such as fire direction, target acquisition, and weapon operation.

Equally important is the training of collective units, such as fire support teams, field artillery batteries, and battalion fire support elements. TC 09 provides guidance on how to conduct collective training exercises, ensuring that units can operate seamlessly in a synchronized and coordinated manner.

Maintaining a Ready Force

Fire support and field artillery units are essential to the US Army's ability to respond to a wide range of threats and contingencies. TC 09 emphasizes the importance of maintaining a ready force, ensuring that units are fully trained, equipped, and prepared for immediate deployment.

The circular provides guidance on conducting regular training exercises, maintaining equipment proficiency, and conducting certification inspections. By adhering to the standards outlined in TC 09, units can maintain a high level of readiness and be confident in their ability to provide effective fire support in any operational environment.

Training Circular TC 09 Fire Support and Field Artillery Certification and Training is an invaluable resource for the US Army in developing and maintaining a highly proficient fire support and field artillery force. Its comprehensive guidance and procedures provide a solid foundation for individual and collective training, ensuring that units are ready to meet the challenges of modern warfare.

By embracing the principles outlined in TC 09, the US Army can continue to deliver precise and effective fire support, enabling maneuver forces to dominate the battlefield and achieve mission success.
