A Life in Boxing

Robert Howard was born in New York City in 1944. He grew up in a tough neighborhood, and boxing was a way for him to stay out of trouble. He started boxing at the age of 12, and quickly showed a talent for the sport. He won several amateur championships, and turned professional in 1964.

Howard's professional boxing career was short-lived, but he made a name for himself as a tough and durable fighter. He fought some of the best fighters of his era, including Joe Frazier and George Foreman. He never won a world title, but he was always a fan favorite.

After his boxing career ended, Howard transitioned into broadcasting. He started working as a boxing commentator for HBO in 1978, and quickly became one of the most popular voices in the sport. He is known for his knowledgeable commentary, his passion for the sport, and his unique sense of humor.

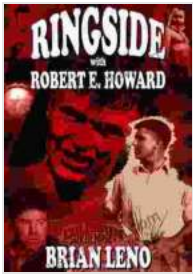

Howard has called some of the most memorable fights in boxing history, including the "Thrilla in Manila" between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, and the "Rumble in the Jungle" between Ali and George Foreman. He has also covered every major boxing event for over 40 years.
